Exeter Community Energy (ECoE) received a 'highly commended' award for Fuel Poverty Action at Community Energy England's awards. Four members of the ECOE team were at City Hall in London to collect the award. Healthy Homes for Wellbeing Project Manager and ECOE Director Tara Bowers also told 150 attendees about energy efficiency's importance, and the challenges involved. ECOE director Prina Sumaria also presented an award in her main role as Local Energy Coordinator at Regen. Paul Whittall, Healthy Homes for Wellbeing Home Energy Advisor, and Andy Exance, ECOE director, joined Prina and Tara.

Don't forget that you can now withdraw your shares

Your investment in ECOE isn't locked in. You can withdraw it if you might need some more money to get through the difficult winter ahead, or for any other reason. ECOE's business model is based on paying back £20,000 of shares to our members each year. So please email info@ecoe.org.uk if you are interested in withdrawing your investment.
